Dr. Eugene Smith honored with building name change

Arkansas State University President-Emeritus Dr. Eugene Smith was honored for leadership and service to the university, the Eugene W. Smith Hall was dedicated in a ceremony May 29. The building, which now bears Dr. Smith's name, is the former Chickasaw Student Services Center located at 106 North Caraway Road across from the Student Union.

ASU's Board of Trustees passed a resolution Sept. 12, 2008, to rename the structure, which houses the Center for Excellence in Education and the doctoral program in educational leadership. Also in Smith Hall are

University College programs, the Center for Regional Programs, three departments of the College of Nursing and Health Professions, including Social Work, Clinical Laboratory Sciences, and Medical Imaging and Radiation Sciences. Museum's "Mayan Medallion" mystery exhibit concludes June 14

Secrets of an ancient world await in Palenque, Mexico, where the Maya prospered for thousands of years. But, if you don't get to the ASU Museum by June 14, you will miss it. Thanks to the Arkansas Discovery Network, which is funded by the Donald W. Reynolds Foundation, visitors have enjoyed this fun and interactive exhibition. In this exhibit, an archaeological team mysteriously disappears while investigating rumors of a priceless jade medallion buried in the ruins. Parents and children can follow the clues the team left behind to locate the precious medallion, but heed the warning signs. The exhibition is free and open to the public Tuesday-Friday; 9 a.m.-4 p.m. and Saturday--Sunday; 1-5 p.m.
